

DETECTIVE IS HELD FOR DEATH OF WIFE SLAIN IN HIS OFFICE

Mrs. Samuel Leitner Shot Five Times During Call at Husband's Office.

PISTOL IN CHIMNEY FOUND AFTER SEARCH

Standing close to a window in her husband's office directly above a crowded thoroughfare Mrs. Sarah Leitner, wife of Samuel Leitner, head of a private detective agency with an office at 52 East Eighth street, one block west of Broadway, was shot five times and killed at 6 o'clock last night.

Early this morning Leitner was charged with homicide after he had steadfastly stuck to a story that two men wearing gray caps had entered his office without being observed, had shot his wife and escaped.

In spite of the great number of passers-by whose attention was attracted by the shots no one was found by the police who saw any one run out of the building right after the murder, nor did any of the other workers in the building see any one go up or down stairs.

According to Coroner Feinberg and Assistant District Attorney Skinner, Leitner's motive was jealousy. He and his wife had frequently quarrelled over his suspicions and the theory of the authorities is that there was another quarrel due to the same cause just before the murder.

Late last night the police found a revolver hidden in a chimney in a room just behind Leitner's office. Six shots had been fired from it; its calibre is .32, and the police believe there is no doubt that the shots that killed Mrs. Leitner were fired from this revolver.

They also developed that for at least two months Leitner and his wife have frequently had bitter quarrels. One of these was last Thursday, and during it Leitner pursued his wife around his home, 1213 Forty-first street, Brooklyn, until the neighbors intervened.

The powder marks surrounding two of the five wounds on the body indicated that the revolver was held within a few inches of Mrs. Leitner when it was fired. Leitner was questioned in his office, a few feet from the body of his wife, for four hours and then was taken to Police Headquarters, to be interrogated further.

Known as Burglary Expert.

Leitner has long been known to the police as one of the best men in the city in his specialty, which was guarding against or solving theft burglaries and package thefts from trucks and express wagons. For the seven years that Leitner was in business for himself his chief source of income came from protecting trucks from package thieves and solving lost burglaries.

He frequently considered it bad business to make an arrest and appear in court, and he would rather solve a crime, turn over his evidence to one of his friends in the detective bureau and make the arrest and get the credit for it.

Leitner was married for eleven years. His wife used to be considered a beauty, but ill health for the last year had had its effects. The Leitners had five children, two boys and three girls. The youngest is 9 months old and the oldest 15 years.

Mrs. Leitner had been visiting the German Hospital almost daily recently, and had also been house hunting in Manhattan. During this period she made it her habit to drop in upon her husband at 6 o'clock each evening, and so home with him.

She called just before 6 o'clock last night. Leitner makes his office in the corner of the first floor above the street level of an old dwelling which has been converted into a business building. His office backs against the street front, and is about ten feet square. A wood and glass partition does not reach the ceiling. Through the middle is a high steel mesh partition, behind which is his desk.

He said his wife had been there only a few minutes. Two girls in the New York and Brooklyn Window Cleaning Company, which occupies the rest of the second floor, had good night to him and Mrs. Leitner and went home. His wife, who had long been on the verge of a nervous breakdown, was pacing nervously up and down in a narrow space beside his desk.

From his seat he could not see the door and from the door only his wife's head and shoulders could be seen. Then came the quick succession of shots, later shown to be five, and his wife fell screaming, "I am killed."

Leitner said he turned to look at her and then peered over the top of the desk. He said he saw two heads wearing gray caps, but not the faces beneath. The owners ran through the door and he said that he ran after them to the street, looked up and down the street, but saw no one running away.

Search for Finger Prints.

Across the street were Bert Meyers of 229 East Ninth street, son of a boss truckman at 47 East Eighth street, and two of his father's employees, John Belmont of 125 Second avenue, and Theodore Miller, 959 Washington avenue. They heard the shots and ran over to Leitner's office immediately, but saw no one running away in any direction.

Soon came the policeman on post, and in a short time Deputy Commissioner Sullivan, Inspector Gray, Capt. William Devey, Coroner Feinberg, Assistant District Attorney Skinner and about twenty detectives. The room was photographed and measured and the furniture was searched for finger prints, without success.

Coroner Feinberg found that of the woman's five wounds two of them showed powder marks in such a small radius that it proved that the revolver had been held within a few inches of Mrs. Leitner when it was fired. The steel mesh rail would have kept outsiders several feet away from the woman.

Two of the wounds were in the right breast, two in the left breast and one bullet had gone through the palm of the right hand and then through the window. Only one wound, one of the two in the right breast, was fatal. Just behind Leitner's office is a room used by the New York and Brooklyn Window Cleaning Company to store their tools. Last night Deputy Detective Clinton Wood found a pipehole leading to a flue in the chimney, and in the rear was a piece of metal. Under it was the revolver.

At Leitner's home May Sweet, employed there as a maid for two months, said that Leitner and his wife had quarrelled violently all the time she was there. One time she heard Mrs. Leitner threaten to expose Leitner to the police, although she didn't go into details. Last Thursday they had the most bitter quarrel of all said the maid. Leitner, before he became a private detective, was arrested twice on charges of pocket picking, but was discharged both times. The dates were 1902 and 1904. According to the record in Police Headquarters in those days he was known as Sam the Hobo.

PLOT SUSPECTS IN COURT.

Capt. Tunney's Seven Prisoners to Be Arraigned To-day.

Capt. Tunney and his bomb squad, who last week arrested seven men in connection with a suspected conspiracy to steal large quantities of sugar from outgoing vessels and fire the depleted cargoes to hide the thefts, spent most of the afternoon yesterday arranging their evidence to present in the Yorkville Court this morning when the men will be arraigned. Six are charged with grand larceny and one with receiving stolen goods.

Deputy Commissioner Scull and Capt. Tunney said yesterday that an investigation was still going on to determine whether any German agents were concerned in the alleged thefts and fires. In any event the seven men under arrest will probably go to trial on the present charges. If sufficient evidence is found to substantiate arson charges the cases may go to the Grand Jury.

MAGISTRATE WARNS ROWDIES.

Those Who Start Restaurant Fights Must Go to Workhouse.

Before sentencing two young men to ten days in the workhouse Magistrate Levy in the Tombs Police Court yesterday attacked the growing rowdiness in the greater city. He said there was a certain class of offenders which make a practice of victimizing Chinese and Greek restaurant keepers. He added that hereafter he would give jail sentences to these rowdies rather than the accustomed fine.

The incident causing Judge Levy's remarks was a fight in the restaurant of George Chung, 3 Pell street. Four young men entered the place and after eating refused to pay for the meals. In the fight that followed furniture was broken. The prisoners sentenced are James Carbone of 19 Varick street and William Buckley of 34 Morton street.

TAKEN AS SUBWAY SWINDLER.

Piano Polisher Accused of Collecting for Interborough Jobs.

Robert Friedman, 24, a piano polisher of 211 Southern Boulevard, The Bronx, was arrested by Detective Scott and O'Connor last night in the apartments of Louis Lasky, 536 West 113th street on a charge of petty larceny. A L. Merrick, superintendent of subways on the Interborough, assisted. According to the police Friedman admits having swindled a number of men looking for employment by representing himself as an employee of the Interborough and demanding $5 in advance for a uniform.

Friedman, an electrician, of 117 West 117th street, made the complaint. He advertised, he says, for a position and Friedman answered and collected $5 from him on August 21. His case led Mr. Merrick to take the matter up. The prisoner, according to detectives, has served a year in Elmira.

VIOLA STEVENS ELOPED IN TROUSERS, MOTHER HEARS

Parent Offers $500 Reward for Return of Fifteen-Year-Old Girl.

Mrs. Adelaide Stevens of 552 Hancock street, Brooklyn, was led to believe yesterday that her fifteen-year-old daughter Viola is making a vagabond tour of New Jersey dressed in boy's clothes and with her hair bobbed. The girl disappeared on Thursday with Martin Goodman, 16 years old, of 711 Eastern Parkway, and a postal from the boy yesterday pictured an elopement by freight train and an imminent marriage.

"Dear Jim," said the postal to James Ople, an employee of the Children's Museum of Brooklyn, "arrived safe. Striking Pennsylvania. Having a damned good time. Caught freight at Westfield, N. J. Left at Asbury. Got square meal from a farmer's wife." It was signed "Frank Sayville," but, following a postscript which said, "Will write you on our honeymoon," the signature was "Martin."

Sayville, it is believed, is the name under which the eloping youth is making his way to Arizona, a region he has always wanted to visit.

It was from Andrew Bostnick, a fellow student of the elopers at the museum, that Mrs. Stevens has learned that her daughter and Goodman started for Arizona, as they said, from the Kew-Haven station of the Long Island Railroad, in the dressing room of which changed her clothes to that of a boy and cut off her long tresses. The abandoned clothes and shorn locks were later found near there.

A $500 reward has been offered by Mrs. Stevens for the arrest of the boy and the return of the girl.

Mrs. Stevens left her home shortly before midnight last night in an automobile after receiving information which is said to have told her of the whereabouts of her daughter.

BIG R. R. UNIONS ALLIED IN 8 HOUR DAY FIGHT

Railway Employees Will Also Demand Better Working Conditions.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 30.—As the result of the meeting held in the Lyceum Theatre last night by representatives of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, Order of Railroad Conductors, Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen, Order of Railroad Telegraphers and Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen it became known that all railway workers organizations in heading a movement to combine and demand an eight hour day and better working conditions.

Among those at the meeting were L. E. Griffin, assistant grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; J. E. Miller, Baltimore, chairman of the Order of Telegraphers; L. E. Shepherd, Pittsburgh, vice-president of the Order of Railroad Conductors; and George Wark, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Engineers.

The speeches indicated the cooperation of all railway workers organizations in the general demands being formulated by the executive heads of the organizations. The full crew law, eight hour day, arbitration and the receiving of orders by trainmen over the telephone are the main points being considered.

The principal contention of the combined organizations in making demands on the railroad companies will be that living has increased in cost and that wages have not been proportionately advanced. "considerable secrecy is being maintained by the organization heads in making their plans."

Battleship New York in Trip.

The battleship New York, which has been at the Brooklyn navy yard for several weeks undergoing repairs said to have cost $250,000, is now in condition and will leave to-night or tomorrow morning to join the fleet in Narragansett Bay.

Macy's Semi-Annual Offering of Fine Chinaware & "Straus" Cut Glass

Just the word "Macy's" was enough to bring in an amazingly large number of shoppers in spite of the rain yesterday, because it meant that prices in this event would be absolutely without qualification the "Lowest-in-the-City."

And the fact that we have already sold out a number of items completely (including the special lots not advertised) speaks better than anything we might say of the beauty, quality and VALUE of the offerings in the Sale.

The John Wanamaker Store

Broadway at Ninth

Last Day—TODAY—of the August Furniture Sale and Its Half-Price Offerings

We are reluctant to close the Sale. It has been a month of happy, satisfying enthusiasms.

The sunny faces of the people as they bought told us this. Their words to the salesmen (overheard by the advertising writers, who fairly live with the merchandise) told us.

We have helped to make many new homes. That is a world of pleasure in itself.

We have helped to make old homes newer and better. And that is well worth while.

We have brought money out of its hoarding place and put it to useful work—bringing pleasure to the owner and work to the furniture maker—and that is good for the whole country.

And now as a farewell and "good-will-thank-you" we are doubling the purchasers' money in these half-price offerings.

Last Year the Last Day Was the Biggest Day of the Sale

Folks who put off coming, folks who had just returned to the city, folks passing through the city—folks from near and far—all came in and were courteously and satisfactorily waited on, notwithstanding the great crowd.

Having in mind the recollection of this last day of last year, we have prepared for an emergency today—

- plenty of furniture in the half-price group.
- plenty of variety in the entire general stocks.
- plenty of salesmen and helpers to make things run smoothly and happily.

The only privilege we ask is that deliveries may be deferred a few days, where not inconvenient, to enable our big furniture auto trucks and the big brawny, good humored men who operate them to catch up with their work.

Come as early today as you can, but if you should be delayed by business to the last minute, just whisper the word FURNITURE to the door-man and he will let you in the store even though it is a few minutes after closing time (5 P. M.).

We do not want even one individual to be disappointed in any way with this August Sale of Furniture—or with the house that fathers it.
